

Concerning Peace.

The Milwaukee News is still kicking against the pricks. Just now it is denouncing the cause of Jeff. Davis by denouncing Mr. Lincoln for not offering the late rebel commissioners such terms as they could accept. It says:

"But we know, and all men know, that Abraham Lincoln had and has it within his power to gain the sympathy and allegiance of a vast majority of the southern people, and thereby to ensure the return of the rebel States and the explosion of the southern confederacy—and that, too, by simply insuring them the rights of self-government."

Which means in plain English, that Mr. Lincoln has been using his peace sayings to please the Southern Confederacy. The "rights of self-government" have not now and never have been denied the people of the South by Mr. Lincoln or the party in power, in a single instance, until they made the insatiable attempt to overthrow the rights of the whole country to self-government. When they struck down the flag, they became traitors entitled to no rights under the constitution they had assailed, until they "ground the weapons of their rebellion," and return to their allegiance; and when they do so return, their institutions and their property, "peculiar" and otherwise, must remain in the condition which a state of war leaves it. The institution of slavery, which the News never forgets for a single moment, cannot be restored to them any more than the lives of their citizens, who have made long their way in battle, can be returned to them, again by an act of congress. In rebelling they subjected everything they possessed to the ravages and fortunes of war, and must now submit to the consequences of their own folly.

Had Mr. Lincoln offered to settle affairs by acknowledging the independence of the South, the people of these states might not have hung him to the nearest tree, as he would have deserved, but he would not have been declared re-elected President for four years longer, as he was the other day. Such an act on his part would have clearly demonstrated his treachery to the expressed will of the people at the last election, and the Presidential electors would have taken the responsibility to repudiate him.

The fault finding of the Savannah people, as well conceived nor as well put, as is done by its co-laborers at Richmond. The Richmond Examiner's articles upon the same subject, have much more freshness and originality than those of the News. As the redoubt of rebel sentiment in the North, our Milwaukee contemporary is getting decidedly stale.

The Real Feeling of the Savannah people.

The New York Post says: A private letter dated at Savannah, January 30, and addressed to a gentleman in this city, gives some facts which show the real feeling existing in that place. The writer, after deploring the false expressions of the loyalty of Savannah, which have gained ground at the North continues as follows:

"I do not believe there are twenty respectable whites in the whole city who are really for the Union. If they could, the majority of the people would cut all our throats to-morrow. I saw to-day the man who kept the clubhouse where the first men of the place assembled every night, and he gave me some accounts of their bitter hatred of the North. Mr. Arnold, who figures so much in the meetings held here, at which patriotic resolutions were passed, was the president of this club. These men uphold as long as they could, the military authorities of the rebellion."

When, within two months, a large number of Union prisoners were here, they would not permit the blacks and a few of the middle class of whites to give them food from their scanty stores, and fifty-two perished with cold and hunger from Friday night to Sunday morning."

"The ministers here will not pray for the President, except the black clergymen. Those pray heartily for him and the government. The minister of the Presbyterian church yesterday I know prayed thus: 'For all Presidents, that their minds might be illuminated to see the right and follow it, and eschew the wrong,' which was just as much for Jeff. Davis as for A. Lincoln. The Episcopal ministers omit the prayer for the President entirely. If these people were loyal they would not stand such prayers, and the ministers know they are pleased with such supplications."

Small Pox.—The Palmer Journal, in speaking of the small pox, and a cure for it says:

"About sixty cases of small pox have been treated at the State Almshouse during the past three months, with a single fatal result, and that was the case of a man who was taken there in the last stages of the disease, from the neighboring town. The remedy used in all these cases was a tea made from a plant known in medicine as Soraria Prupera, familiarly called Indian Saddle, or Water Cup, the root of which is the remedial part. This remedy is a new discovery in medical science, and has been used with excellent effect elsewhere. The effect of the remedy is to allay the fever and irritation caused by the formation of pustules, the latter drying away rapidly, leaving slight, if any, traces of the disease."

A "Hoss Car" Adventure.—Ariana Ward is looking at things in Boston. He had an adventure one day, which resulted as follows:

I returned in the Hoss Cars, part way. A poor girl in spectacles sat near me, and was telling a young man how much she reminded her of a young man who used to know in Waltham. The young man got out, and I said to the girl in spectacles: "Don't remind you of somebody you used to know?"

"Yes," she said, "you do remind me of one man, but he was sent to the Penitentiary for stealing a barrel of mackerel. He died there, so I could not say 'him.' I didn't pursue the conversation."

Passage of the Constitutional Amendment—Scenes in the House.

(From the N. Y. Tribune.)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31, 1865. The hour has come! The proposed Amendment to the Constitution immediately abolishing and forever prohibiting Slavery comes up for final decision. "An anxious throng of witnesses pours into the galleries: there is an air of confidence rising almost to exultation on the Union side, while a sullen gloom settles over the Slavery benches."

Alexander H. McAllister, Dem., of the XVIIIth Pennsylvania District, reads a beautiful paper, in which he justifies his change of vote, and casts his ballot against the corner-stone of the Rebellion.

The galleries are getting crowded, the floor of the House filled up. Anson Herrick, Dem., 6th District of New York, next gives frank and statesmanlike reasons why he has changed his views, and shall change his vote.

In the midst of the speaking, and that buzzing which always characterizes a critical vote upon a great question, it is whispered that three Rebel Peace Commissioners, Stephens, Hunter and Campbell, are on their way here—that they were at City Point last night. A few believe, but most people say "gold gamblers' news."

1.30 P. M.—The crowd increases. Senators, leaders of Bureaus, prominent civilians and distinguished strangers, fill the spaces outside the circle.

The interest becomes intense. The disruption of the Democratic party now going on is watched with satisfaction and joy upon the Republican side of the House; anxiety and gloom cover the obstinate body guard of slavery, whose contracting lines break with the breaking up of their party.

James S. Brown, Democrat of Wisconsin, spitefully indicates his intention to vote against freedom. Aaron Harding, of Kentucky, a "Border State Unionist," bless the mark! makes an effort to poke fun at young Democratic converts, and aims the struggling nigger back under the protection of the sacred Constitution.

Martin Kalbelsch, Democrat of Brooklyn, reads a long pro-slavery composition which excites little attention and no interest.

3 p. m.—The hour for voting has arrived, and the fact is announced by the Speaker. Mr. Kalbelsch is only at the 22d page of his composition and begs to be excused through six pages more. The request is granted with much reluctance.

The galleries are wonderfully crowded, and women are crowding the reporters' seats. The Superior Court and the Senate appear to have been transferred bodily to the floor of the House.

3.20 p. m.—A motion to lay the motion to reconsider on the table assumes the character of a lost vote. The most earnest attention is given to calling the roll. Division lists appear on all sides, and members, reporters and spectators devote themselves to counting.

Of course the attempt to table the amendment will fail; but there are not votes enough to pass the bill. Absentees drop in one "aye," one "no." The roll is called over by the Reading Clerk, but the count has already been declared in whistlers through the House—37 ayes. (11 ayes. It is not tabbed.)

3.30 p. m.—Question is taken now on motion to reconsider the vote of last session by which the proposed amendment was lost for want of two-thirds. The House vote to reconsider, Ayes 112, Nays 57.

Now commence efforts to stave off the final vote. Robert Mallory, (Dem.) of Ky., with a menace as to what course he should decide to pursue, appeals to Mr. Ashley to let the vote go over till to-morrow. Other democrats clamor for this delay.

Mr. Ashley refuses and stands firm, this being the accepted time and the day of salvation.

The final vote begins. Down the roll call, as James E. English (Dem.) of Conn. who votes "aye." A burst of applause greets this unexpected result, and the interest becomes thrilling. The Speaker's hammer falls heavily and restores silence.

Clerk John Ganss "Aye." Applause again, repeated again by the Speaker. Angry calls among the democrats and great irritation of feeling.

God bless the XXXVIII Congress! The work done in securing the passage of this bill is immense. It has taken the labor of a entire month, night and day, to secure the majority which to-day so delighted the friends of freedom and of humanity, and so astounded the allies of slavery.

To two republicans in particular does the nation owe a debt of gratitude—to James M. Ashley of Toledo, Ohio, and Augustus Frank of Warsaw, N. Y. They held the laboring oars.

The democrats were sure of defeating the measure by a large majority up to this point; indeed, they felt sure of it up to the final voting. The republicans were not sure of success till last night. Three batteries of regular artillery have just saluted the grand result with one hundred guns, in the heart of the city.

The New York Tribune says: "The reason why Buckhead's Hair Dye is so universally used and has such an immense sale, is that they are always made up to the original standard, of highly invigorating material and of pure quality, although the price here is largely advanced."

The Tribune just hits the nail on the head. The Plantation Bitters are not only made of pure material, but the people are told what it is. The Recipe is published on each bottle, and the bottles are not sealed in tin, at least every individual and counterfeits have sprung up. They impose upon the people once and that is the last of them.

The Plantation Bitters are now used in all the Government Hospitals, are recommended by the best physicians, and are warranted to produce an immediate beneficial effect. Aches are stubborn things.
